

W. W. LEWIS

We are often asked by persons, after they have bought goods of us, why we sell our goods so low; and they suggest that if we were to ask more for them, we could get it, and if we did not, we could fall in price and not lose the sale.

OUR SECRET.

We will take the public into our confidence. The reason we sell goods so low is because we buy them low, and, being a new house, think it best to get cheap to draw trade. The reason we have only ONE PRICE is because we wish to put our best foot foremost. The system of falling prices is toothsome to the buyer, but when they find that some one else has bought lower, they become embittered and seldom forget it.

LEADING BARGAINS.

The gopher snake was never known to attack a man without being wounded or disturbed. Mr. Duffie thought it best to leave the swamp, and he did so.
A PHENOMENAL SNAKE.
An Ophidian with Feet Carrying Over Sixty Claws Each—The Latest Snake Story.
Mr. Richard Decker, a resident of Walkill valley, in Ulster county, N. Y., while working in his old field recently, was surprised by a black snake which came at him with open mouth, his head elevated from the ground his twelve or fourteen inches. He succeeded in killing it with his pitchfork. In measurement found it to be five feet seven inches in length and a half at the largest part. The extraordinary feature of the creature, however, was the presence of two well-formed legs with five-fifths attached to the body at a point about five inches from its tail. The legs were of a light pink or flesh color, were of a light length and drawn to their full length and suddenly released they would spring back to their normal position at the reptile's side. The feet were about the size of a hazel-nut, and were hoof-like in appearance and of a darker color than the limbs to which they were attached. Upon each one of these feet or hoofs were sixty-three small claws, white and of a horny substance. The body of the snake, with the legs attached, was seen by most of the inhabitants of the village before it was put into alcohol and forwarded to the national museum at Washington.

Ochiltree's John Brown Interview.
In conversation with Major Ochiltree the other day, the reporter ventured to ask him if he had seen the reported interview between himself and Queen Victoria, said to have occurred when Minister Lowell presented him at court: "Oh, yes, I read that before I left England. It was published in all the leading English papers. It was written by George Butler, a nephew of Ben Butler, and is as fine a travesty as was ever written, and is so regarded in England. It shows Queen Victoria just what the people think of her ridiculous demonstrations over the Scotch gilly, John Brown. Of course, I don't mind the ridiculous light in which it places me, because all who know me are aware that my part in it is a myth, as in fact the whole thing is a fabrication; but, for the purpose for which it was written, it is a fine effort."

The Madison Disaster.
Madison, Wis., November 9.—Gov. Rusk has called a meeting of the capitol building commission to consider the details of yesterday's disaster in the collapse of a portion of the new capitol building. An exchange says: "A man was driving an old ox when he became angry and kicked him, hitting his jaw with such force as to break his leg." And we have been fairly wild ever since we read the paper to know who or which got angry at whom or what, and if the ox kicked the man's jaw with such force as to break the ox's leg, or how it is? Or did the man kick the ox in the jaw-bone with such force as to break the ox's leg, and if so, which leg? It's one of those things which no man can find out, save only the man who kicked or was being kicked, as the case may be.
